the 25th Inst.: In this morning's Bazoo appeared an article under the caption of 'The Devil Turned Saint." which relected very much on Dr. Hull, editor of the Sedalla Democrat. It seems there has been a local jealousy existing between the two papers for some time, which came very near culminating this morning seriously. Dr. Hull armed himself with a double-barreled shot-gun, and took a position on the street, and awaited Goodwin, of the Bazoo, with all the coolness imaginable; but before his wanted victim came in sight, the difficulty was settled by the interference of friends, and the big-gun of the Bazoo made his appearance on the fair ground in the afternoon clothed in white from top to bottom What the dress was indicative of, under the circumstances, we are unable to say, but an old soldier said it had all the appearance of peace.
